1. Online applications cost less than paper applications.

Applicants simply register and log-in to work on their applications. Judges log-in to view and enter scores. You save time and money on copying, mailing, and administration.

2. With downloads, you don't know what you're missing.

When applicants download an electronic application, you don't know much until the deadline. With real-time access to application data, you can see how well you are meeting your goals and adjust communications to reach target audiences.

3. Development of online forms takes time and money.

Nimble Net uses the App Tracker, our proven, four-step online application interface. The design and development is ready and waiting for your next grant or contest.

4. Your requirements may change from year to year.

The App Tracker generates pages dynamically giving you flexibility to add, delete, and group questions. The Score Tracker™ groups questions for judging.

5. Different people use the Web in different ways.

Some people scan and click, others read directions or print and read offline. Nimble Net supports all these users with clear directions, online help, and guides to download.

6. Applications should be secure and confidential.

When you ask applicants for personal information, you need to make sure that you have security in place to protect the transmission of the information and access to the data.

7. You can communicate with applicants.

You can increase your conversion rate of started to completed applications by targeting communications to applicants based on their progress and other data.

8. We help you apply performance metrics to your process.

Nimble Net analysis applies benchmark performance metrics to help you make the case to executives for future funding and improve your program from year to year.

9. You can support return applicants and teams.

With one registration database for your organization, you can track participation between programs and over time.

10. Make applying easy and rewarding for everyone involved.

Nimble Net makes the application process fast and easy for applicants and administrators to help you improve the quality and quantity of your applications.
