1. Online judging costs less than paper applications.

Judges simply log-in to view and score applications. You save time and money on copying, mailing, and administration.

2. Sometimes judges drop out without telling you.

Meeting your announcement deadline depends on the judges. Search and sort capabilities show which applications have not yet been scored by which judges. If a judge drops out, you'll know before you've missed your announcement date.

3. Development and design of online forms is expensive.

Nimble Net uses the Score Tracker™, our proven four-step online judging interface. The design and development is ready and waiting for your contest.

4. Your requirements may change from year to year.

The Score Tracker generates pages dynamically giving you flexibility to group questions, assign scoring criteria, and add comment boxes for judges.

5. Scores should be secure and confidential.

Each judge has a unique password and log-in to an encrypted review page on Nimble Net. They do not carry paper applications with them that may be misplaced or lost.

6. Judges may need to adjust their scores.

The Score Tracker lets judges enter scores, review other applications, and revise scores at their own pace. They review and submit each application score when ready.

7. Judges need reminders to stay on track.

Contest administrators register judges in the system and they keep their contact information up-to-date. Search and sort judges by contest, location, title or other criteria to e-mail groups, download contact information or create a checklist.

8. Make judging easy and rewarding for everyone.

Grants and contests rely on high-quality impartial judging to select winners. Nimble Net makes the judging process fast and easy for administrators and judges.
